FALL 2013

Fall Into Organization

by Craig Lord

The other day I was cleaning out my desk, sort of a spring cleaning in the fall. I have one file drawer that was so stuffed that it was almost unusable. You know the kind; overflowing with papers, nothing in its place. Inside I found all sorts of stuff. I recycled the old bills, the telephone log from 2011, and the Phillies schedule from this year. By adding a couple more folders and sorting things out, I actually have a file drawer that works again. This is a small example how a little organization can greatly improve the function of any space.

This fall we are focusing on organization by featuring our expertise in Kitchen remodeling and space organization.

Both seminars at RCL University will speak to these subjects. There are many new products that can improve storage and functionality of a space. Our clients who had their Laundry Rooms, Mud Rooms, or Closets redone have been very pleased. New Kitchens always produce more storage even if the size of the space remains the same. The best part is that these rooms look beautiful when we are finished.

If your Mud Room is starting to look like my file drawer then maybe you should give us a call and set up a consultation. We can make your life easier.

RCL University Seminar Update

RCLU, Department of Domestic Policy presents Home Organization 101: Exciting new products now make it possible for everything to have a place of its own. News in the Neighborhood

The leaves are beginning to turn and right on time we find ourselves in another busy Fall. Some projects are finishing up, while others are just getting started. Cynthia and Wayne Streibich are enjoying their new Master Bedroom suite. Theresa and Brian Hogan combined their Dining Room and Kitchen, and love the new space. We are back at the home of Michel Merckx and Catherine Blair finishing a second phase that includes a new Kitchen and Family Room. Bernadette and Paul Curtis are looking forward to their new Master Bath.

Carpenter's Corner

This edition we feature our newest carpenter Sang Nguyen. Sang has been with us eight months and has already thrilled us with his work ethic and skills. He is a very good carpenter and as our clients have found out, a pleasure to have in your home.

When he is not making people happy, Sang enjoys sports and outdoor activities. Sang graduated from Burlington County Institute of Technology. He makes his home in Moorestown.
